Re: Power Integrations v. Fairchild Semiconductor et al. (CA 04-1371 JJF)

Dear Howard and Michael:

I write concerning the declarations submitted by Power Integrations in connection with its motion for permanent injunction. These declarations go beyond anything in the record and seek to introduce new "facts" into evidence. Fairchild is entitled to discovery concerning the basis of the information set forth in their declarations.

Solely by way of example, Mr. Blauschild's declaration is particularly suspect. He claims that 26 specific Fairchild devices "infringe one or more of the asserted claims of the '366, '851 and/or '876 patents". Mr. Blauschild, however, fails to identify the "publicly available information" that he allegedly reviewed or provide any basis for his opinion (such as a comparison of these newly accused products to any asserted claim). Indeed, Mr. Blauschild fails to identify which claim is allegedly infringed by which product – information necessary if Power Integrations seeks to enjoin these devices.

Thus, we request that Power Integrations produce all information considered by their declarants in the course of preparing their declarations. Once Fairchild has reviewed this information, it will depose the declarants. Obviously, this must be completed sufficiently in advance of Fairchild's opposition to Power Integrations' motion.

Please let us know whether Power Integrations will agree to this discovery. If Power Integrations refuses, we will have no choice but to seek the assistance of the Court. If this is necessary, time will be of the essence so that this issue can be resolved before Fairchild's

Dear Bas:

Your demand for additional discovery to respond to Power Integrations' motion for injunction remains unsupported; as I explained before, Fairchild's own data sheets for the 26 parts identified in our motion, which we have now produced to you from Fairchild's own web site, suggest these parts are the same as the parts specifically found to infringe in all relevant respects. As such, there is no apparent basis for Fairchild's assertion that the parts are different. We expect the schematics to show beyond doubt who is right, and we ask once again that you produce those schematics immediately rather than artificially withholding them until December 3. Pending receipt and review of the schematics, there is no point in any further "discovery."

Please confirm that you will produce the schematics immediately so that we can evaluate them and respond accordingly.

Sincerely,

A handwritten signature in black ink, appearing to read 'Michael Headley', written over the printed name.
